INNOVATIVE FINANCING KEY TO GREEN ECONOMY

B. INNOVATIVE FINANCING KEY TO GREEN ECONOMY

UK TIME	PROGRAMM
12:00 - 13:00	Panel II: Innovative Financing Key to Green Economy Climate change is threatening recent global development gains and progress. In this context, the private sector won't be immune to its repercussions, as climate-related fears ripple across global markets. However, like any disruptive force, climate change is creating opportunities for companies willing to innovate. Adopting innovative solutions to climate action, such as blended finance and green financing tools, inevitably leads to bettering the capital market, boosting job creation, and establishing economic inclusion; all leading to much-needed increased investments and consistently strengthen private sector engagement. It is this imperative to set out an international adaptive, flexible and implementable framework for climate action, that would be applicable to developing and emerging economies at large, hence pushing forward their adaptation and mitigation efforts. The panel discussion aims to shed light on: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • What do different stakeholders need to do to translate commitments into implementable projects; and capture opportunities to catalyze needed finances and investments to support the climate agenda? • How to mobilize the funds necessary for the transition to a sustainable green economy and close the climate financing gap? • How climate strategies can be operationalized, ensuring that financing is channeled into the right development initiatives? Panelists: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • HE Dr. Rania Al Mashat, Minister of International Cooperation, Egypt • Chris Antonopoulos, CEO, Lekela • Sherine Shohdy, Coverage Director, Egypt, British International Investment • Harry Boyd-Carpenter, EBRD MD Climate Strategy & Delivery • Mafalda Duarte, Climate Investment Funds, CIF • Vivek Pathak, Director & Global Head, Climate Business, IFC Moderated by: Jonathan Charles, Managing Director of the Communications Department, EBRD

As a result, Egypt today has around 6 GW of installed renewable energy capacity, of which c. 2 GW has been developed by the private sector, which contributes positively towards the government's national target of achieving 20% of renewables in 2022 and 42% by 2030. Moreover, in line with Egypt's plan to decarbonise the industrial sectors under the framework of the 2015 Paris Agreement, the government is in the process of developing its national hydrogen strategy with a plan to establish a green hydrogen market in Egypt. This aims to capitalize on relative advantages Egypt has for green hydrogen production, namely its geographical proximity and access to exceptional wind and solar resources. <ul data-bbox="383 863 1189 1078" style="list-style-type: none">• Faissal Eissa, Managing Director, Lekela Egypt• Martin Horgan, CEO, Centamin Plc• Terje Pilskog, CEO, Scatec ASA• Daniel Calderon, CEO, Alcazar Partners• Mohamed Mansour, CEO, Infinity Energy EBRD Moderator: Aida Sitdikova, EBRD, Director & Head of Energy Eurasia MEA

Faced with water scarcity challenges and a fast-growing population, Egypt is working on an ambitious programme of solar-powered desalination plants, which aims to transform the water landscape in the country through substantial investments in the sector. A significant role is foreseen for the private sector, in an initiative, which would make use of Egypt's abundant solar resources. Egypt is also seeking to mobilise opportunities in green logistics, backing innovation in a fast-developing sector driven by private sector investment and where there is ample scope for green investments in energy efficiency, clean vehicles and efficient business models. <ul data-bbox="383 922 2024 1142" style="list-style-type: none"> • HE Yehia Zaki, Chairman, Suez Canal Economic Zone, Egypt • Ayman Soliman, CEO, Sovereign Fund of Egypt • Holger Rothenbusch, Managing Director & Head of Infrastructure and Climate, British International Investment • Dalia Wahba, Deputy CEO, Hassan Allam Utilities EBRD Moderator: Sue Barrett EBRD, Director & Head of Infrastructure TMEA
